Author(s): Ákos Kádár, Grzegorz Chrupała, Afra Alishahi

Agreement: We are pleased to publish your Article in a forthcoming issue of Computational Linguistics (CL). By your signature below you hereby grant to the Association for Computational Linguistics (ACL), effective as of the date of this agreement, all your right, title, and interest including copyright in and to the Article.

Open Access Publication of your Article: You agree to the publication of your article under the Creative Commons CC BY-NC-ND license in Computational Linguistics: <http://www.mitpressjournals.org/loi/coli>

Rights Reserved by Author: You hereby retain a non-exclusive license:

1. to reproduce and distribute copies of the Article by hardcopy or electronically, including but not limited to photocopy, email, FTP and on-line server distribution, provided that the copies are not made or distributed for direct commercial advantage; and
2. to publish the Article, or permit it to be published, as a part of any book you may write, or in any anthology, including CD-ROM and electronic formats, of which you are an editor in which the Article is included, or which expands or elaborates on the Article, unless the anthology is drawn primarily from Computational Linguistics.

Multiple Authors: If there is more than one author of the Article, the word "you" includes all authors jointly and severally. Your names will appear in Computational Linguistics in the order listed below. If one of you is to be the corresponding author, he or she should indicate that fact next to his/her signature. The corresponding author may sign for all authors, if he or she has authority to act as their agent, in which case please check the "for all authors" box when signing.

Rights of the Association for Computational Linguistics: This agreement means that the Association for Computational Linguistics will have the following exclusive rights for a period of five years:

1. to license abstracts, quotation extracts, reprints, and/or translations of the work for publication;
2. to license reprints of the Article to third persons for educational photocopying;
3. to license others to create abstracts of the Article;
4. to license secondary publishers to reproduce the Article in print, microform, or any computer-readable form including electronic on-line databases. This also includes licensing the Article for document delivery.

After five years following the date of the publication of your article, these licenses will revert to non-exclusive rights.

Warranties: You warrant that the Article has not been published before in any form (except insofar as it may have been posted on an electronic FTP site), that you have made no license or other transfer to anyone with respect to your copyright in it, that you are its sole author(s) and generally that you have the right to make the grants you make us. Any exceptions are to be noted below. You also warrant that the Article does not libel anyone, invade anyone's privacy, infringe anyone's copyright, or otherwise violate any statutory or common law right of anyone.

You agree to indemnify us against any claim or action alleging facts which, if true, constitute a breach of any of the foregoing warranties.

Concerning U.S. Government Employees: Some of the foregoing grants and warranties will not apply if the Article was written by U.S. Government employees acting within the scope of their employment. U.S. government employees may reserve the right to reproduce the Article for U.S. government purpose checking this box ☐.or, if no copyright can be asserted in this work and it should be considered in the public domain, please check this box ☐.

In Conclusion: This is the entire agreement between you and us, and it may be modified only in writing. It will bind and benefit our respective successors in interest, including assignees, and our licensees, provided that you may not assign this agreement without our prior written consent. It will terminate if we do not publish your Article within two years of the date of your signature(s).
